A VICIOUS BROADSIDE.

Gen. Atkins Indignant at the Methods Employed to Defeat Him.

He Accuses Speaker Carlisle and Others o Treachery and Downright Falschood.

Gen. J. D. C. Atkins, of Tennessee, who was the defeated candidate for the place of clerk of the house, is in a bad state of mind over the result. He is outspoken and venomous in his denunciation of the methods em-ployed to defeat him. His account of the ployed to defeat him. His account of the battle is not complimentary to Mr. Carlisle, and he intimates that a man may even aspire to the distinguished part of speaker, and yet break his word. Gen. Atkins is one of the Tennesseeans who has been conspications by a long term of service in congress. He was first elected in 1856, and served two terms before the war. During the war he was a member of the confederate congress, and since the war he has served four terms in the United States congress. Since he was 21 years old he has been almost continuously in high office, and it may be presumed that he is a strong man in Tennessee. He claims that an overwhelming majority of democrats in the present house promised to vote for him. His successful opponent was Gen. John B. Clark, of Missouri, who has served five terms in congress. Gen. Atkins openly asserts that he was defeated by shameless trickery. He said yesterday, "I want the people to know that I would not have accepted the clerkship of the house with the conditions under which it is now occupied. I was simply beaten out of it by a ring and by a buildozing process that do not reflect any credit upon the men who engineered it. If all the members who were pledged to me had voted for me I should have been elected by 25 majority, and, as it was, I was elected by a majority of 4. But the changes that followed in consequence of the bullying process that was employed were enough to beat me, and that was the only thing that did beat me. In fact, I was beaten by a ring organized for that purpose." battle is not complimentary to Mr. Carlisle, coss that was employed were enough to beat me, and that was the only thing that did beat me. In fact, I was beaten by a ring organized for that purpose."

In a further conversation with friends Gen. Atkins said that the "ring" against him comprised, among others, Mr. Carlisle, Mr. Wintersmith, "ud Mr. Leedom. "I had the positiv" promise," said he, "of Mr. Carlisle to vote for me for clerk, and yet in the caucus he went right up and voted for Clark."

Gen. Atkins further intimated that a number of Tennesseans who voted for Carlisle would not have done so if they had anticipated the act of treachery. The general is certainly mad all through at the way in which he has been treated, and there is no doubt but that he will project a first class row in the democratic camp on account of it.

To Abolish the Internal Revenue. Senator Butler's bill to abolish the internal revenue system, introduced in the senate yestorday, provides "that all laws and parts of laws and all rules and regulations of the depart-ments now in force for the collection of the internal revenue tax be, and the same are hereby, repealed, but this act shall not take effect until twelve months after its passage." Senator Mahone's Relations to the Republican Cauens.

Senators Mahone and Riddleberger received. invitations to the caucus of republican sena-tors Tuesday similar to those sent to the republican senators. Senator Mahone, speak-ing of his attitude toward the republican party, said yesterday that he had no objec-tion to attending a republican caucus, and should have attended that of Tuesday had he received the invitation in season. He would not, however, attend as a member of the caucus, nor vote upon any proposition which might come before it. He held that the thirty-eight republican senators, being a majority of the senate, had a right to its con-trol. He had no candidates for the senate offices, and would not attempt to influence the nominations. He had strong preferences, as was well known. Should he attend re-publican caucuses it would be simply for conference. He believed his opinions were shared by Senator Riddleberger. invitations to the caucus of republican sens-

Another Presidential Message. It was learned at the white house yester-day that the President will make the Mississippi river improvements, the Hennepin canal, and other public works, the subject of special messages to congress. Reference to these subjects were omitted from the regular message with the view of treating them more in detail in supplemental communication.

The hydrographic office of the navy has issued a new pilot enart of the North Atlantic ocean for the month of December. It will publish these charts monthly, and later weekly, if a sufficient appropriation can be secured. They show the prevailing winds and currents for the month and the location of any floating wrecks dangerous to navigation. The charts will be sent to the maritime exchanges for distribution and to all United States ship masters, and it is thought the information contained will be found of great value to all seafarers.
